Coronets' Message

Greetings and well wishes unto Our populace! The long, hot summer is finally winding down, and everyone is looking forward to the slightly cooler temperatures and beginning of the busy fall/winter event season.

As all should know by now, We have a new King and Queen! Long may They reign! Their Royal Majesties Kurn and Maisie were crowned in a joyous--albeit a bit bloody--celebration, that was slightly delayed by the threat of a hurricane. The Coronation ceremony was enjoyable for everyone (except maybe the previous Crown, may They rest in peace...), and Their Majesties honored Their populace with lovely tokens of fealty, followed by a wonderful party in celebration of Their Triumph later that evening. Songs were sung, libations flowed freely, and the populace was delighted by exotic zoological wonders and entertainments. Slight panic ensued when the gorilla broke free of his enclosure, but the good Count Lorcann managed to cage the beast once more, saving the partygoers from any harm.

Though Their Majesties very recently took the Throne, They will be hosting a tournament to find suitable Heirs in a short time. Fall Crown Lyst will take place on the weekend of November 8th - 10th at Camp La Llanada in Lake Wales. The competition promises to be fierce and exciting, so We encourage you all to attend and celebrate the new Heirs with the Kingdom! We know the distance is far, but the trip can be a wonderful way to get to know your fellow members by carpooling. There is also an unofficial Facebook group called Trimarid Ride Share where you can coordinate with others in Kingdom to carpool to events.

On the home front, please plan to attend Yule, which will be held at the Tallahassee Bible Church on the weekend of December 13th. Yes, you read that correctly, it will be a weekend event! Sir Gryph and Lady Elizabeth have been kind enough to coordinate the weekend-long event with their church, and We look forward to camping and enjoying Yuletide revelry with everyone! Similar to Gatalop, there will be communal tent space available for barracks-style camping, but attendees are also welcome to put up their own tents and enjoy the December weather.

Finally, as the event season picks up, We all know what's coming: Gulf Wars! We know it seems very far away now, but it will be here before you know it. Registration should open in December, and land announcements will be coming soon. Stay tuned to social media and the Gulf Wars website for news. We will once again run the Oldenfeld Volunteer Dinner, so remember to make plans to volunteer for at least ten hours, and you will get a steak dinner in return! More details on that and all other aspects of War will be forthcoming, but it's never too early to start your projects. Now is a great time to work on banners and other projects from your "would be nice" list before the crush of last-minute critical projects consumes us all. We hope to see you at an event soon, and remember, be kind to yourselves and to one another! Charles and Aurelia, Baron and Baroness

Seneschal Message

Unto the Populace of the Barony of Oldenfeld do I offer warm greetings;

The long, sweltering days of summer are finally beginning to wane and our 2019-20 event season is in full swing! We have Yule and Panhandle Skirmishes to look forward to and I hope that you are as excited about the months to come as I am!

As we enjoy the cooler weather and our events get more comfortable, let us all thank those who volunteer to staff and work events, those who offer to teach classes both in and outside of events, and to thank those who volunteer in ways large and small within Oldenfeld; sometimes, even the smallest gesture of praise for someone's assistance can inspire a gentle to great deeds - now, or in the future. Sometimes, it can spell the difference between playing at the next event, or leaving the Society.

Enjoy the cooler days, catch up on yard work, enjoy your weekends more, and we'll share our Dream again soon.

Hail Oldenfeld!
Master Miklos

Business Meeting Information

The Barony of Oldenfeld has its business meeting on the first and third Thursday of the month at the Publix at Lake Ella, 1700 N Monroe St, Tallahassee, FL 32303 in the upstairs meeting room. All members and non members alike are encouraged to attend to find out about the goings on with the Barony.

Fighter Practice Information

The Chivalric (rattan fighter) community practices once a week. They meet at noon on Sunday at Tom Brown Park (on Easterwood Drive), near the Dog Park. Rapier fighters usually meet on the same day, same time.

We welcome one and all to watch and ask questions and perhaps even give it a try!
